

District News

We just started a new year and already things are off to a great start. The community turned out at a forum to share with North Mason School Board directors their visions for a thriving Theler. We heard great ideas and citizens continued to bring forward their ideas after the forum ended via facebook, e-mail and letters. It is truly heartwarming to see a community so dedicated to the success of their students and looking for opportunities to bring more to North Mason. Commissioners Terri Jeffereys and Randy Neatherlin have also been working hard to bring forward solutions.

The lawsuit the district was involved in has been resolved. All parties are communicating and working with one another to ensure that our students have an excellent educational experience.

Our new high school has been open for 5 months now and has been cherished by our students. We have had a drop in disciplinary action and we are hearing reports that our students are inspired that our voters put such a great value on their education by voting yes.

Our renewal levy will be on February 9th ballots. The rate will remain the same as voters had voted in for 2016. The community has been showing a great deal of support. We are also working hard to enhance technology for our students and give them the latest and greatest tools for success to compete in an ever evolving job market.

On the Legislative front we are working with our State Representatives to remove barriers and reduce requirements that do not directly benefit our students. We have a great dialogue with them and they are actively gathering our input on how State laws are effecting education.

Our own Superintendent Dana Rosenbach has been named the President-Elect of Washington Association of School Administrators for OESD 114. We are very proud of her and excited at all this new school year has brought us thus far!
